

To Teachers of Creative Writing:

The Institute's commitment to access and diversity enables us to launch a scholarship competition each year. The competition is open to students enrolled full-time in undergraduate or graduate programs who are nominated by their creative writing instructors. In the last two years the Institute has awarded full tuition scholarships to students from, among other institutions, Temple University, Brown University, Stanford University, Cleveland State University, Connecticut College, University of Rochester, University of Michigan, Sarah Lawrence, Yale University, Wellesley College, Washington University, University of Miami, Bard, Hamilton, Northwestern, Princeton, Rutgers, USC, The New School, Emerson, Mills, Notre Dame and Bennington College.

To nominate students, send an email to writerscholarship@skidmore.edu indicating the names and email addresses of those you recommend to us. Up to six nominated students from each writing instructor are welcome. We are of course looking for particularly strong writers, and hope also to increase the diversity of our student body. All faculty nominations are required by FEBRUARY 25th.

Applications from students must be received by MARCH 10th. The names of scholarship award winners, along with their schools, will be announced to all applicants on or around MARCH 20th.
